Success is sweet

CENTRAL AUSTRALIAN CHILDREN'S PRODUCTION YAMBA'S PLAYTIME IS GATHERING TRACTION ON THE CHANNEL 9 NETWORK, RATING 100,000 VIEWERS IN ITS FIRST EPISODES FOR THE NEW YEAR.

"And this was only in the metropolitan cities across Australia - the ratings didn't take into account regional and rural viewing," Yamba host Jacinta Castle says.

Yamba the Honeyant made his debut 15 years ago on Imparja TV.

"He was created as the station's mascot and used to deliver goodnight messages like 'remember to brush your teeth'. He became really popular so he then got his own television series on Imparja, Yamba's Playtime," Jacinta says.

"In the last two years we have made a few changes to the show's format. We started working with scriptwriter Cameron Clarke who did the Hi Five children's television show and is now working on Channel 7 children's show, Toybox. In addition to the new scripts, Yamba was also given a voice.

"We are really excited about the show's success on commercial TV, because it's our way of bringing a bit of central Australia to the whole of Australia."

Yamba's Playtime was the first Indigenous Australian television series to be rated 'P'.

Ratings are determined by the Australian Broadcasting Authority and a 'P' rating means the show is intended for pre-schoolers.

It went to air on Channel 9 on 2 January this year and will continue through until the end of its 14 episodes. There is already talk about a second series for Channel 9.

While the series has a big health focus, there's also plenty of music, dancing and fun.

"I think the show is also successful because it's something uniquely Australian, incorporating Indigenous languages and themes that captivate everyone. We have been receiving emails from adult viewers who love the show. It's created quite a buzz," Jacinta says.

Yamba's Playtime is not the only show starring Yamba the Honeyant and his good friend Jacinta. There's also the Yamba Roadshow, which is a travelling roadshow that includes a 30-minute musical performance about healthy living. Jacinta and Yamba the Honeyant have just finished touring around the Northern Territory and are off to country Queensland and the Gulf in 2012.

And what's in store for Yamba's Playtime viewers in 2012? Plenty, according to Jacinta.

"There'll be singing and dancing and a bit of space travel for Yamba and myself. There's lots of exciting adventures in store for us in 2012."
