LANGUAGE TERMS

There are many language terms you should become familiar with. Here are just a few.

SETTING: The place where the events of a story occur.

What was the setting for Indigenous Australia's night of nights – the Deadlys? (Page 4)

PUN: A play on words which adds a light-hearted tone to writing. For example, "The teacher was a class act." The pun is on the word 'class'.

Frances Rings made a pun when she collected her award. What word was the pun on? (Page 24)

RHETORICAL QUESTION: One that does not require an answer because it is obvious.

The editor-in-chief, in his editor's tag, asks a rhetorical question regarding the 2003 Deadlys. Write that rhetorical question below. (Page 2)

SIMILE: When a comparison is made between two objects, for example, "She is like a duck out of water."

Find a simile in the poem "Matter of the Heart", and write it in the space below. (Page 22)

TONE: The writer's attitude to his or her subject matter or audience; the distinctive mood created by this.

How would you describe the tone of the article "One Big Deadly Night"? (Page 4)
